I have researched this some...I have found a 99% solution, and will be in further contact with Adobe tomorrow. The 99% solution...if Adobe crashes while you are working on a document (firstly, pray like anything you have saved it recently...) before working on your document again, open up a random PDF after the crash, then close adobe...so that it has closed normally, without crashing.

One of the biggest (and most obvious) ways to get away with using a doctor's note template to use it sparingly. It's like how you can sometimes get out of going to a date night by claiming you have a migraine, but if you use that excuse too often pretty soon your significant other is going to suspect your honesty.
